Information [L. informatio, a sketch, imperfect knowledge.]
The total of all the propositions, accepted in a given state of knowledge, which involve a given term, are independent of one another, and are not implied in the meaning of the term, considered as a quantity belonging to the term in that state of knowledge, this quantity being at once proportional, in a vague sense, to the informed breadth, and to the informed depth of the term.

References: MS [R] 1147
Date of Quote: 1901-1902 [c.]
URL: http://www.commens.org/dictionary/entry/quote-definitions-baldwins-dictionary-r-0