A representamen, or sign, is anything which stands, in any respect, at once in a relation of correspondence to a correlate, called its object[,] and to another correlate, its interpretant. which is a possible representamen determined by the first and referring to the same object. The idea of a representamen thus essentially involves the idea of an endless series.

References: MS [R] 1147
Date of Quote: 1901-1902 [c.]
URL: http://www.commens.org/dictionary/entry/quote-definitions-baldwins-dictionary-r-4