Term: Sign

Quote: By a sign I mean anything whatever, real or fictile, which is capable of a sensible form, is applicable to something other than itself, that is already known, and that is capable of being so interpreted in another sign which I call its Interpretant as to communicate something that may not have been previously known about its Object. There is thus a triadic relation between any Sign, an Object, and an Interpretant.

References: MS [R] 654:7

Date of Quote: 1910

URL: http://www.commens.org/dictionary/entryQUOTE-ESSAYS