A copy is a representation which really and of its self refers to its object by resembling it.