A definition is the logical analysis of a predicate in general terms. It has two branches, the one asserting that the definitum is applicable to whatever there may be to which the definition is applicable; the other (which ordinarily has several clauses), that the definition is applicable to whatever there may be to which the definitum is applicable. A definition does not assert that anything exists.

References: EP 2:302

Date of Quote: 1904

URL: http://www.commens.org/dictionary/entry/quote-new-elements-kaina-stoicheia-3