Inference

...unconscious inference differs essentially from inference in the narrow sense, all our control over which depends upon this, that it involves a conscious, though it may be an indistinct, reference to a genus of arguments.

References: CN 1:107; W 8:235; CP 8.63

Date of Quote: 1891

URL: http://www.commens.org/dictionary/entry/quote-review-william-jamess-principles-psychology-part-2