

Habitation

1898 | Training in Reasoning | RLT 189

The third of the psychological operations involved in reasoning is Habitation, – the power of readily taking habits and of readily throwing them off. There is no habit more useful [than] this habit of easily taking up and throwing off mental habits.