

Immediate Inference

1880 | On the Algebra of Logic | W 4:168; CP 3.169

A complete argument, with only one premiss, is called an immediate inference. Example: All crows are black birds; therefore, all crows are birds.