Title: Hegel Bulletin Special Issue: Pragmatism

Description: Pragmatism has historical and conceptual connections to Hegel's philosophy and the aim of this special issue is to explore aspects of this relation. We invite papers on neo-pragmatist interpretations of Hegel, on idealist themes in both classical pragmatist thought and the 'neo-pragmatism' of Richard Rorty and Robert Brandom and their 'new pragmatist' critics, and on aspects of idealist and pragmatist approaches to core philosophical concerns from epistemology to ethics.

The editor of the special issue on Pragmatism is Dr Neil Gascoigne. The special issue is scheduled to appear in Spring 2015.
